

Granite quarries supplied the harbour walls throughout winter.

Masons dressed every block beside the northern slipway before merchants shipped cargo toward distant markets.

Tidal charts recorded unusual currents near the lighthouse.

Keepers logged storms alongside routine repairs.